Our Shared Vision:
A world where individuals and families facing serious illness, death, and grief will experience the best that humankind can offer.
The past year, 2017, has been an exciting one for NHPCO, National Hospice Foundation, and Hospice Action Network. It was President and CEO Edo Banach’s inaugural year with our organization – a time that was rich with learning, listening, and exploration. Throughout 2017, NHPCO hosted listening sessions in several cities where Edo welcomed members and non-members alike to engage and share ideas and concerns about the field and our organization. NHPCO leadership had the opportunity to present at national and state-wide conferences, visited programs of all sizes, and welcomed many hospice professionals to our offices in Alexandria. Meetings with Congressional leaders and federal staff have been ongoing. The insight gained from all this activity is invaluable.

So, if 2017 was a year of learning, then 2018 will be a year of action. Yet, that does not imply that there were not accomplishments last year. This report offers only a brief list of representative accomplishments; we encourage you to visit our websites for more comprehensive information on each of our organizations.

The work of NHPCO, NHF, and HAN would not be possible without the support and commitment from our members, supporters, and advocates. Through your membership dues, board service, committee participation, philanthropic support, grassroots advocacy, and your willingness to work together, we have and will continue to accomplish much.

As the oldest and largest leadership organization working on behalf of hospice and palliative care, NHPCO’s work extends beyond the ranks of our membership. Along with our affiliates, our accomplishments serve a broad constituency and are recognized as a vital part of the work involving advanced care and life-limiting illness.

We are the original interdisciplinary, person-centered, population health movement and we look forward to the promise and opportunity the future holds.

Thank you!
